

A Cat in the Dog House-Developing Working Relationships

sponsored by

Central New York Teaching Center, SETRC & Syracuse Teaching Center

Anyone can be a manager of accommodating people. The real skill is how to lead the independent, hard-to-reach people. This program uses Michael Grinder's famous analogy of dogs and cats. Just like the animal, we can't control cats—we have to figure out how to get them to follow us...what we need is charisma. This workshop will focus on: identifying dogs and cats via their non-verbals, establishing relationships with dogs and cats, increasing our own cat during difficult times, letting out our own dogs during easy times, learn how to develop relationships adult to adult and adult to student and more.
